ETHICS TUTORIALS

Please email your essay to me and your tutorial partner 24 hours in advance of your tutorial.

I will read and comment on your essays, and please read your tutorial partner's essays before the tutorial. If you don't send your essay by 24 hours in advance, you'll need to read your essay out at the beginning of the tutorial (this is not a punishment; it's just the tutorial group needs to know the content of your essay for the discussion).

You should also come to the tutorial with at least one question about your tutorial partner's essay. That could be, among other things, a request for clarification on a key issue, or a possible counterargument or counterexample, or a suggested fix or modification for an argument. You should also feel free come to the tutorial with questions to ask which you might not have covered in your essay.

One of the key things you'll have been doing in your philosophy tutorials so far, and which you'll continue to do in these tutorials, is learning how to write a philosophy essay. If you're interested, I've written a set of writing tips (aimed at 1st years taking General Philosophy tutorials), which you can find here.

Questions and Readings

Section One: Ethical Theories

Week 1. Consequentialism and Friendship

Question: Can a good consequentialist be a good friend?

- B. Krister Bykvist. 2010. Utilitarianism: A Guide for the Perplexed (Continuum): 16-22; 106-10.
- E. Peter Railton. 1984. "Alienation, Consequentialism, and the Demands of Morality." Philosophy & Public Affairs 13 (2): 134-171.

- E. Elinor Mason. 1998. "Can an Indirect Consequentialist Be a Real Friend?" Ethics 108 (2): 386-393.
- F. Michael Stocker. 1976. "The Schizophrenia of Modern Ethical Theories." The Journal of Philosophy 73 (14): 453-466.

Week 2. Kantianism and Acting from Duty

Question: Is there anything wrong with acting from the motive of duty?

- B. Onora O'Neill. 1993. "Kantian Ethics." In Peter Singer (ed.) A Companion to Ethics (Wiley-Blackwell): 175-85.
- E. Immanuel Kant. 1785. Groundwork of the Metaphysics of Morals. Translated and edited

- by Mary Gregor (CUP, 1998): sec I.
- E. Bernard Williams. 1976. "Persons, character, and morality." In Moral Luck (CUP, 1981): 1-19.

NB. This paper and Stocker's from last week include discussion of what have become the canonical examples alleged to illustrate the repugnance of acting from duty. Neither paper focuses centrally on acting from duty, so you only need to focus on these examples (17-18 in the Williams; 462 in the Stocker).

- E. Marcia Baron. 1984. "The Alleged Moral Repugnance of Acting from Duty." The Journal of Philosophy 81 (4): 197-220.
- F. Julia Markovits. 2010. "Acting for the Right Reasons." The Philosophical Review 119 (2): 201-242.

Week 3. Virtue Ethics

Question: Can virtue ethics provide a credible criterion of right action? Should it?

- B. Roger Crisp. 1998. "Modern Moral Philosophy and the Virtues." Introduction to his (ed.) How Should One Live?: Essays on the Virtues (OUP): 1–18.
- E. Aristotle. Nichomachean Ethics, translated and edited by Roger Crisp (CUP, 2000): 2.1-9 (i.e. bk. 2, chs. 1-9); 6.1-7, 6.12-13.
